SUES GERRY FOR $50,000.

The Case of Miss Linbeck, a Former Maid, for III Treatment in a Robbery Case at Newport, Begins To-day.

The trial of an action brought by Margaret Linbeck against Commodore Elbridge
T. Gerry, to recover $50,000 damages for faise arrest and imprisonment, will begin this morning in Part VI. Trial Term, of the Supreme Court, before Justice Glegerich. Miss Linbeck, who was employed as a maid for the eldest daughter of Commodore Gerry, alleges in her complaint that our August 25, 1803, B. H. Richards, connected with the police force of Newport, R. L. caused her arrest at Newport and defained her for two hours and insulted her. In his answer, Commodore Gerry says, that the plaintiff had been engaged to not as maid for his eldest daughter, and that she had charge of her room and her personal effects.

He says that on August 17, 1803, during the absence of his daughter and his family, valuable jeweiry belonging to his daughter was stolen from a bureau drawer in his daughter's room.

Compilaint, Commodore Gerry says, was

Zaugali was twenty-five years old and had been employed as a clerk. He tost his position recently and became so despondent that his friends watched him closely, fearing he would commit suicide. He had been very quiet yesterday and startied every one who saw him when he ran from his room with blood streaming from deep gashes in his wrists and ran upstairs to the roof.

Several of the neighbors tried to catch him, but reached the roof only in time to see Zangali huri himself headlong to the stone-pared court, five storles below.

Two young women, teachers in the parochial school attached to the Church of Madonna di Lorero, next door to Zangali's home, saw his fearful leap. Notified by them, Father Palmero hurried to the place and was administering the sacrament of extreme unction when the police came up.

Zangali died before an ambulance reached the place, and the body was taken to the Muberry Street Police Station.
